New leisure centre planned for Woolwich

by Dick Townsend-Smith

PLANS for a brand new leisure centre in the heart of Woolwich town centre are being drawn up as part of the council's long-term vision for the area.

The proposal for the new facility was agreed at a recent meeting of the council's cabinet and will see the new centre built on the site currently occupied by the local Wilkinson store.

When building works are completed, residents will benefit from being able to undertake a wide range of sport activities from a brand new, bigger and easily accessible facility. New features such as cafes and play areas will be introduced to make it a family friendly space, alongside more traditional features such as a multi-use sports hall and squash courts.

Wilkinson have confirmed that they will stay in Woolwich but will relocate to another town centre site.

The plan forms a central plank of the Woolwich Masterplan – the overall vision for the town centre aimed at promoting economic growth and regeneration.

Woolwich is undergoing a rapid transformation, with a new Crossrail link due to open in 2018. The latest plans would make an important contribution to breathing new life into the town.

They offer the chance to encourage more shoppers to Woolwich by attracting more people into the town to use the new

Thanks for such a proactive response

THANK you for publishing my letter a few weeks ago. I have just received the Sainsbury's gift card as a result of winning the previous week's star letter - thank you so much, very handy! I would also like it to be known how much the visit to my home impressed and surprised me (I almost choked on my toast!). I would have thought it very rare for a council to make the effort to listen to its residents in this way, very impressive! I will look into ways to go forward with my quest for a less-littered Plumstead. I may do it with neighbours etc or, as you so kindly gave me information about it, go down the Environment Champions route. I am settling in really well, as I am new to the area, the people of Plumstead are kind, considerate and nice. Once again thank you very much.

Lena Williams, Plumstead
● A council spokesperson said: "Thanks for your letter Lena. We're delighted that you found the visit by members of the street cleansing team beneficial. We hope that the home visit will help assure you that the area will be kept really clean and tidy in the future." If anyone else would like to make any suggestions about how we can work together to keep the borough clean, we will happily ask a member of the street cleansing team to contact you.

I'll do 100 mile bike ride this year - somewhere!

MANY thanks for your excellent double page spread 'It's Time To Get On Your Bike,' (February 11). There's no excuse now for people of any age or ability not to get out and start cycling. Thank you for your very nice article on me. Since publication, I have been notified by RideLondon that I have not been successful in winning a place in the ballot for their event.

I am gutted! However, losers are invited to write a piece in no more than 140 words explaining why they deserve a place in RideLondon, which takes in a route of 100 miles round London and Surrey ridden by Olympians in 2012. I have written in, but I have only a very small hope of success. Whatever happens, I will complete a 100 mile ride this year with my cycling club and am already in training. This is the challenge I have set myself this year.

HAPPY SPORTS:
The children can now enjoy lots of different sports on their multi-use area

MOST schools would be delighted if one celebrity turned out to open their new sports facilities.

But at Timbercroft Primary School last Friday, dozens of well-known faces from the world of sport could be spotted.

That's because the children combined raising money for BBC's Sport Relief, for which they were asked to come dressed as sports stars, with the opening of their multi-use games area (MUGA). Welling United manager Jamie Day attended the opening, along with the Mayor of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, Cllr Angela Cornforth.

The school, in Plumstead, has been using the area, which has basketball hoops and football goalposts, since the turn of the year after raising the money itself.

School administrator Paul Nichols explained: "We've been yearning for something like this for a couple of years. "It was all installed just before Christmas and we began using it just after."

The blue-surfaced facility replaces part of the playground and will be used at break times and for PE.

It was used during the day for sponsored activities to raise funds for Sport Relief. Another activity on the day was a sponsored silence.

Bigger and better leisure centre for Woolwich moves step closer centre with all the main amenities and attractions in one place.

The new leisure centre would provide a high-quality building right at the gateway to the town, opposite the main public transport stops of Woolwich Arsenal and the DLR station and the main bus hub.

Cllr Peter Kotz, the council's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "This is all about building a brilliant and modern leisure centre for Woolwich which will have all the same facilities and family focus as the current Waterfront Centre."

"Like the Waterfront, it will offer a brilliant all-round sport and leisure facility but in a newer up to date building."

"The Waterfront Centre is enjoyed by nearly a million customers a year, but its location on the fringe of the town centre and across a very busy road is far from ideal.

"Bringing users into the heart of Woolwich, and into a brilliant brand new building, makes sense for them as well as the town as a whole."

The next stage is to carry out feasibility studies and a consultation with users.

● The existing Waterfront leisure centre will remain open until the new facility is fully operational.

£3.4m for schools improvements

NEW boilers, windows and roofs are among improvements that will take place in 10 primary schools in the next year, after councillors agreed to a £3.4 million maintenance programme.

The improvements – agreed by the council's cabinet last Wednesday – are the latest phase in an ongoing programme of investment by the council.

The improvements will play an important part in reducing carbon admissions and enabling schools to reduce their energy bills.

Roofs will be replaced at Rockcliffe Manor, Cherry Orchard and James Wolfe primaries.

Water pipes will be replaced at Alderwood and heating and hot water boilers at Heronsgate, while Brookland will have alarm system renewed. Rewiring of the main teaching block will take place at Woodhill while the roof and window replacements will take place at Deansfield and Timbercroft. Kidbrooke Park will also gain new windows.

The investment in building improvements takes place alongside the royal borough's programme to expand the number of school places to meet the needs of a growing population.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "It's a high priority for us to ensure that our children have a modern, comfortable environment in which to learn, while our teachers and other school staff also have a right to a comfortable working conditions."

Cultivating jobs

Gardening skills to be taught at new centre

GREEN FINGERS: Left from back, Mark Lumsdon-Taylor from the centre, Cllr Denise Hyland and apprentices Thomas Woodcock and Jordan Fuller

by Dick Townsend-Smith

BUILDING work has begun on a new borough skills centre, which will help open doors for people wanting to work in parks and open spaces.

The Horticulture Skills Centre, on Shooters Hill, is part of one of four skills centres in the borough.

It will be the second half of the Horticulture and Equestrian Skills Centre, being run in partnership with Hadlow College, and due to open later this year.

Courses will be offered in landscaping, parks and open spaces management, horticulture, green-keeping and laying sports turf.

There will also be the chances to do courses to become licensed for using chainsaws and other machinery.

The centre will run introduction courses and apprenticeship training, courses for people who want to work for themselves, and up-skilling courses for those already in the industry.

It is the latest in a set of pioneering skills centres being set up by the council to give residents the chance to be trained for sectors which have good job prospects.

Those already established are the Digital Skills Centre on the Greenwich Peninsula and the Catering and Hospitality Skills Centre at Charlton.

Last November, the council also voted to set up a construction skills centre in Kidbrooke.

Jordan Fuller, 19, and Thomas Woodcock, 20, are already training for a career in horticulture with Hadlow. They are on a 15-month apprenticeship with the council's Parks and Open Spaces department and are studying for an NVQ qualification in horticulture.

Thomas said: "It's a healthy career, getting outdoors and not being in an office. There's always something different to do as the work is driven by the seasons."

"I'm doing tree surgery and it's really hard work. I'd never realised before how necessary tree surgery is and how much goes into maintaining trees. And I really like the contribution we're making. It's about keeping the borough tidy, safe and presentable to members of the public."

Jordan added: "I liked the idea of an apprenticeship and I liked the idea of gardening. A lot of my family work in this area, so I've already done a lot of landscaping. I am hoping to become an arborist, so I'm doing my qualification."

"I really would recommend doing horticulture as there's so much work out there, not just here but abroad."

The equestrian centre, formally opened by HRH The Princess Royal in December, already has local students studying courses in equine care and management.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "The reason we're making this investment in our skills centres, and choosing partners like Hadlow, is that they will offer our residents very real sustainable career paths."

"Hadlow has excellent links with industry and anyone studying in the new skills centre will have a great chance of getting long-term employment afterwards."

"We believe the best way to fight poverty and to improve people's long-term prospects is through employment."

"We're opening skills centres in sectors that we know offer excellent chances to get a job and build a career – whether that's in the digital industry, hospitality and catering, construction or land-based and equestrian industries."

CELEBRATING THEIR SPORT: Two youngsters enjoy sailing

All united by sport

by Ian Lamont

RESIDENTS from across the borough are being encouraged to try out seven sports on Monday (March 31), at the launch of Woolwich United - a project to bring different communities together.

The Waterfront Leisure Centre, Woolwich, will host the launch of the integration through sport scheme, from 6-8pm.

PLEASED TO MEET YOU: Players enjoy a handshake before a match

The sports on offer will be sailing, rugby, football, dance, cricket, basketball and athletics, with programmes running over 15 months in four wards - Woolwich Riverside, Woolwich Common, Glyndon and Charlton.

The project, aimed at people aged 14 upwards and throughout adulthood, has been set up by a £150,000 grant from Sport England and government funding, after the royal borough's bid was put together by Charlton Athletic Community Trust (CACT).

Greenwich was the only London borough to receive the funding, with other projects being carried out in Manchester, Kirklees and Luton.

Other funders include the royal borough, Greenwich Leisure Limited and Greenwich Dance and Charlton Athletic.

Dance has been included because it plays a strong part in most cultures and was found to be the second most popular activity after football in a survey of 50,000 14-year-olds.

Venues for the 15-month programmes of activities will be the Waterfront, the Greenwich Islamic Centre, The Gambia United Society, the Royal Arsenal Academy, Ahoy sailing centre, Somali Education and Cultural project (Clockhouse Community Centre), Crown Woods School, Durkan Oval, Glyndon Community Centre and Woolwich Common Community Centre.

Cllr Peter Kotz, the royal borough's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "There are a great many different cultures in our community. Sport is a fantastic way of learning skills such as teamwork. This project is an excellent way of bringing people from different backgrounds together when they otherwise might not have met, then using the bonds built through sport to break down social barriers, with the idea of bringing communities together in different ways."

Ofsted 'outstanding' for children's centre Family friendly

OUTSTANDING in every way.

That's the official verdict from government inspectors on Eglinton Children's Centre in Paget Rise, Woolwich.

The centre offers services such as health and development checks, post and ante-natal classes and parenting advice.

It also provides fun activities and a toy library, creative arts sessions and coffee mornings.

Ofsted inspectors said it is 'outstanding' for the way it delivers services to families with young children, the quality of them, and how the centre is led and managed. It is the first children's centre in the borough to be rated 'outstanding' in every category.

Ofsted inspectors described centre head, Maggie Carney, as "an inspirational leader." She said: "I am delighted with the outcome of our inspection, which reflects the hard work of all who work and engage with the centre. This includes our families and their young children, and a range of professionals and services providers.

"I believe the centre encompasses all that is teamwork in meeting the needs of our community, and I thank everybody involved."

They added: "The success of the centre in delivering outstanding services is the way in which it has helped to significantly improve the life chances of the most vulnerable families in the most disadvantaged communities."

The centre is planning a big celebration to mark the Ofsted report on Wednesday, April 2, with parents, children, staff and special guests taking part.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, said: "Eglinton Children's Centre is a major success story, and such centres are key to the success of early help for children and families."

Euro grants for green themed innovations

THE eighth Postcode Lottery Green Challenge opened last week on March 10. The competition is aimed at start-up entrepreneurs with business plans to combat climate change. It's organised by the Dutch Postcode Lottery which works for a greener, fairer world by supporting charities in the Netherlands and abroad. The winner of the annual international gong will receive €500,000 to develop his or her product or service and deliver it to the market and an additional €200,000 is available for one or two runners-up. For a chance to win, a product or service must have the potential to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by an amount you can roughly estimate, be developed enough to execute and be viable as a usable product or service within the next two years.

● Entries can be submitted at www.greenchallenge.info by June 3.

Entertaining greeters

Artistes wanted to meet tall ships visitors

PERFORMING artistes who would like to entertain visitors to the Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival in September can start applying to the royal borough.

Street entertainers are needed to perform around the Tall Ship venues from September 5-9.

Performers can include Acapella groups, small bands - duos and trios and Pop Up street theatre performers.

Ideally, performances should be 20 to 30 minutes, be portable, and take 5-10 minutes to set up.

Programmes should be suitable for outdoors, family groups, international audiences and environmentally friendly. Organisers have received a good response and are still looking for good rock, folk, and shanty performers as well as unique street performances which would suit the event.

The Falmouth to Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Regatta will see up to 50 tall ships set sail on August 28. They will be moored along the Greenwich waterfront for a four-day festival which will be the biggest tall ships regatta in London for 25 years.

STORY IN A SONG: singing group Swing the Lead will be singing sea shanties for the tall ships event

Thousands of visitors are expected for the event organised by the royal borough and Sail Training International to celebrate the borough's maritime history.

Water way to enjoy new site!

OLYMPIC diver Tom Daley helped make it a 'splashing' day out for these youngsters from Woodhill Primary School in Woolwich.

The Year 4 and 5 pupils were paying a visit to the London Aquatics Centre after it opened its doors for public and community use.

Woodhill Primary was one of the first schools to go for a swim session at the world-class facility.

On their way into the centre they bumped into Olympic medal-winner Daley, who stopped for a photograph with them.

Children took part in a fun aqua splash session designed to build their confidence in the water.

Musab, from Year 4, said: "It was an experience of a lifetime. I have never seen such an interesting building shaped this way."

Classmate Sherif said: "The inflatable obstacles were great fun. They were hard to climb but we helped each other."

Destiny, from Year 5, said of the centre: "It made me feel alive. There was so much space and the surroundings were beautiful."

You can see the Olympic Stadium while you swim."

Boost your tourism

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Expert advice on hand for firms

ALL the stops will be pulled out during English Tourism Week next week to encourage people to visit Royal Greenwich.

Local firms, such as gift and souvenir shops, restaurants, pubs and cafes, will be able to get expert advice to help boost their tourist trade from Visit Greenwich, the borough's new destination management company.

The company runs informal sessions, called Welcome Wednesdays, to meet businesses and talk about helping them.

The next one is on Wednesday, April 30, at the O2, starting with a walk over the structure's roof. The events are usually on the last Wednesday of the month.

Visit Greenwich was set up in partnership with the council and local visitor attractions. They include Royal Museums Greenwich, the Old Royal Naval College (ORNC), Greenwich Market, the O2, Thames Clippers, Greenwich Heritage Centre, Royal Blackheath Golf Club, the Thames Barrier Visitor Centre, the Greenwich Tavern, and the Greenwich Tour Guides Association.

Visit Greenwich's partners have offered to host the monthly events, so businesses interested in the tourism economy can go along and find out more.

The aim is to increase the numbers of visitors and their length of stay, helping to boost the local economy and to create more jobs.

This year is a landmark one for events, with the Tall Ships Festival in September. The borough is also commemorating the centenary of the First World War, as well as the 300th anniversary of the discovery of longitude, with exhibitions and events at Royal Museums Greenwich and the ORNC.

In 2016, the new London City Cruise Port at Enderby Wharf is set to welcome up to 100 ships per year, providing a steady stream of visitors from abroad.

New hotels being built will double the number of rooms available.

Visitors can get expert advice about the attractions on offer by making the Tourist Information Centre in Cutty Sark Gardens their first port of call.

FIRST STOP: Greenwich's Tourist Information Centre was voted visitor information provider of the year by Visit England

There is a wide range of leaflets, maps and guidebooks and people can buy tickets to attractions as well as fast-track tickets to some of London's major visitor attractions and West End theatre shows. The centre also sells Oyster cards, National Express coach and river services tickets.

Barrie Kelly, Visit Greenwich's chief executive, said: "Our aim is to ensure that Greenwich makes the most of everything it has to offer. I am thrilled to be leading Visit Greenwich in realising the immense visitor potential that this world-class destination has."

"I'm looking forward to working with a dynamic team and partners, who I know will help grow the market significantly."

"With recent hotel development, and more in the pipeline, Greenwich is an ideal base for a short break - and being just 10 minutes to central London adds an extra selling point for our destination."

Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "The borough has a wealth of visitor attractions which help to bring in more than 18 million visitors a year and £774 million to the local economy."

"We look forward to working with Visit Greenwich to further improve our standing as a world-famous visitor destination for the benefits of residents and visitors alike."

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

WORK has begun to improve and revamp the facilities at Charlotte Turner Gardens in Deptford. It's the final stage of a scheme to transform the gardens, on McMillan Street, and the nearby Twinkle Park in Borthwick Street, into a family-friendly village green and park for local people.

The refurbishment will bring improvements including a new-look seating area, a grassed central play area, the development of an apple orchard and the re-installation of a row of cherry trees.

The park's petanque court will also be improved, table tennis facilities will be installed and a fitness trail will be extended.

There will also be a play area for toddlers within a fenced-off dog free area. It will feature a wrecked Viking ship, complete with figure head facing a sea monster and a sloped wooden deck will be ringed by boulders designed to provide clambering and climbing facilities.

Local sculptor Richard Lawrence has been contracted to work with young people from Hughes Fields & Henrietta Young People's Project and the Armada Community Centre Parents & Children's Arts Group to design the decorative elements.

Due for completion in mid-

Locals start work on village green at community garden

April, the project is being led by the Twinkle Park Trust with funding from the Trust and the Veolia Environmental Trust. Plans for the building and improving the gardens and park have been developed in consultation with local residents, schools, community organisations and the royal borough. Twinkle Park Trust coordinator Carol Kenna said: "We are so glad that the wait for this much-needed work is now over. "The new play area will provide a valuable facility for Deptford, providing a focus where children can interact, have fun, use their imaginations, and exercise. "Enhancing the planting will also encourage greater wildlife, particularly birds and insects and improve the look of the park. We can't wait to see the work finished."

Blood simple

New community clinics mean shorter distances and waiting times for tests

by Dan Stephens

THE launch of new community blood clinics means patients will have both shorter travelling times and shorter waiting times when they need to have blood tests done.

The clinics have been set up by the NHS Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group.

The CCG is providing a total of 33 new blood services clinics in the community.

They include a hospital-based service, and clinics at 15 GP surgeries, nine pharmacies and a local dental surgery.

It means a range of clinic locations and opening times across the borough for patients who need blood tests or those who need blood-clotting services.

The new clinics will complement the current service provided by Lewisham and Greenwich NHS Trust at Queen Elizabeth Hospital (QEH) in Woolwich for patients who either need a hospital-based service or choose to attend hospital for their blood tests.

Patients will be able to choose from 13 new blood-testing clinics and 20 new clinics offering blood-clotting services.

Local GP and chair of NHS Greenwich CCG Dr Hany Wahba said: "We developed the new services after talking to patients who told us that they do not want to go to hospital unless they really need to, and that they want better, faster access to blood-testing.

"We have acted on this vital patient feedback which means patients will have easier, faster access to blood services closer to where they live or work.

"And we are excited that a raft of new providers, including GP surgeries, pharmacies and a local dental surgery, will now join QEH in providing blood services."

Cllr John Fahy the royal borough's cabinet member for adults and older people said: "The royal borough is committed to working with local NHS provision and the Greenwich CCG to deliver high quality health services for residents.

"I'm pleased that better, faster access to blood-testing is being delivered as a result of direct consultation with local residents. Greenwich patients will see improvements in both the quality of blood services and more choice over where and when they access the services as a result of this decision."

● A list of the blood services options will be available on the Greenwich CCG website at www.greenwichccg.nhs.uk

Army presents charity fund community gifts

THOUSANDS of pounds have been given to local organisations by the Army's Charity Fund in Woolwich. Dr Tariq Abbasi from the Islamic Youth Centre in Plumstead Road received a cheque for £750 from Lt Col Bob Christopher, Commander of the Woolwich Barracks earlier this month. Dr Abbasi matched the amount with a further £750 and both donations were matched by Lord Mohamed Sheikh so the youth centre received a total of £3,000. The army charity fund also presented a £500 cheque to Greenwich and Bexley Hospice. Deansfield Primary School in Rochester Way, Eltham, received £750 to go towards travel and accommodation cost for children going on a school trip in July. And the fund is giving

£1,000 to the Limited Edition Cycling Club in Eltham Park North, to help buy two cycles for its Riding for the Blind/Disabled scheme. The bikes will be handed over on Armed Forces Day on June 28. Major Gerry Porter from the Royal Artillery in Woolwich, who manages the fund, said: "We raise money throughout the year, which goes into our charity fund. Already this year we have made donations of £500 each to Royal British Legion branches at Thamesmead and Abbey Wood, and the Eltham and Well Hall, with £300 to the Army Benevolent Fund. "We are a very diverse community in Greenwich, and we need to make sure that our funds can be made available to every part of the community."

NEVER FORGET:
crowds gather around the Eltham war
memorial at St
John's church

THE royal borough's plans to commemorate the centenary of the Great War were launched in great fanfare at the Greenwich Heritage Centre.

Local people whose relatives served - and died - in the conflict came together to share information and memories.

Backed by a £10,000 grant from the National Lottery, the project is researching the names carved on local war memorials. The aim is to find out more about the lives behind the names, and bring their stories to life again.

Families are being asked to work with the museum and share what they know about the ancestors they lost in the four-year conflict, one of the bloodiest in the UK's history with horrific casualties on all sides. Heritage Centre experts are working with volunteers, and families to build a picture of local life during the war years.

As part of its regular Museum Late programme, the Heritage Centre at the Woolwich Arsenal stayed open for the evening on Thursday, March 13, so people could find out more about the Family Stories of the Great War project.

Visitors included Angela Narcisi from Thamesmead and husband Neil. Angela's great-great uncle, Gunner Arthur Merrihan from the Royal Field Artillery, was killed in action on April 20, 1918, just seven months before the war ended. She said: "The Merrihan family lived in Walmer Road, Plumstead, and Arthur was one of eight brothers who served, and was the only one to be killed. It would be nice if we could have a war memorial in Woolwich with all the names of local people on it. The only mention of my great-great uncle is in the Book of Remembrance at Shooters Hill Memorial Hospital."

A touring exhibition will be created at the end of the project, which will go into local schools and public buildings.

Also at the launch were members of the Progress Estate residents' association in Eltham. Originally called the Well Hall Estate, the Progress was built in 1915 to house arms workers needed at the Woolwich Arsenal.

The association is planning to mount a centenary plaque in the Progress Hall, as well as producing commemorative gifts and is working with the borough's heritage service to develop their plans.

World war

DICK TOWNSEND-SMITH reports on the launch of a project which is using real life stories to build a picture of local

Standing guard

TWO sentries in First World War 'Tommy' uniforms stood guard at the doors to the launch event. Jason Momtore and Terry Harley, both volunteers at the nearby Firepower! museum, challenged visitors with the bayonets with their Lee Enfield rifles. They included the Mayor, Cllr Angela Cornforth, Cllr Peter Kotz, the council's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, and seven-year-olds Jayla Ulin and Jayden Kandeh from Woolwich. The rifles were in service with the British Army, in different versions, from 1898 right up until 1956. The sentries also recreated an authentic recruiting station for would-be soldiers to sign up (far right).

CLUES TO THE PAST: Angela Narcisi and husband Neil came with information of her great great uncle Gunner Arthur Merrihan

Saving the past for the future

THREE members of Holy Trinity Church in Eltham (pictured left) told visitors about the church's unique memorial chapel to the First World War's Gallipoli campaign. In total, 43,750 allied soldiers died and at least 85,000 Turkish soldiers lost their lives. The chapel is the only one of its kind in the world. It has been used for an annual Gallipoli memorial service every year since 1921, and a fund has been launched by the congregation to refurbish it in time for the campaign's centenary on April 25 next year. Project team member John Towey said: "We help organise lectures about Gallipoli and are raising money to restore the chapel, which was dedicated in 1917. For many years the Turkish ambassador used to come here to take part in the memorial service."

A small, overgrown cemetery is all that remains of the Blue Cross Kennels, which began life in 1899 as a kennels for the pets of army officers. The Blue Cross acquired them at the end of WWI to house dogs brought back by families returning from abroad. The kennels finally closed in 1958. A group of dog walkers, called the Friends of the Pet Cemetery, is working to restore the historic pet cemetery in Hornfair Park and are keen to hear readers' memories about the site on Shooters Hill Road, or memories that have been passed down. Secretary Jean Patrick said: "Our objective is to tackle the very neglected cemetery. We want to put in new benches and planting, and make it a sanctuary and a tribute to the men and women who went to war. "Many dogs went abroad as military working dogs, and when they came back they went into quarantine at the Blue Cross Kennels. We are researching the headstones in the cemetery. "Some have registration numbers on them, and one of them is for a soldier's pet monkey! They are mainly for wartime dogs and some got the Dickin Medal (the animals' 'Victoria Cross') for bravery and their contribution to the First World War."

Music Hall tribute

A UNIQUE song all about the women who worked in the munitions factory at the Royal Arsenal was performed at the launch event by local choir the Woolwich Singers. Called 'She Works at Woolwich Arsenal Now', the music hall romance by Robert Donnelly is about a woman called Florie who gets a job at the arsenal while her beau and his chums are off at war. The Woolwich Singers community choir revived the song with its stirring lyrics and rousing chorus. (Below right) Representing the thousands of nurses who served during the Great War was Nurse Hermione Godfrey (actress Nichole Bird) from the Red Cross Voluntary Aid Detachment, who nursed for the Royal Army Medical Corps at field hospitals on the Western Front. There were 9,000 nurses when the war started. By 1916 there were 31,000.

SECOND RUN: The Glass-Eye Theatre company returns to Greenwich with The City and Iris later this month

Theatre's eye for talent-spotting

A YOUNG theatre company is asking its biggest supporter, Greenwich Theatre, to take a well-earned bow.

The Glass-Eye Theatre company is currently on tour across the UK and with a date in Canada booked for May. They call in to Greenwich on March 30 with their production The City and Iris and they're thanking the Crooms Hill theatre for its part in their success. "Greenwich Theatre have been amazing and we simply wouldn't be doing all this without their help," said Glass-Eye Theatre's artistic director Cath Johnson.

"They provide us with rehearsal space and James Haddrell - the theatre's artistic and executive director, has mentored me in things like funding, marketing and tour booking."

With just a red rope as a prop, The City and Iris was a big success at Greenwich last year and returns on March 30, before it goes on to feature in the Ottawa International Children's Festival in May.

James Haddrell, Greenwich Theatre's artistic and executive director, said: "Glass Eye is a great example of a young company with a really strong artistic vision and an exciting new way of telling a story without a set or props. Our role is to identify young companies like this who are full of talent but don't have the experience of the industry to develop their work."

The City and Iris is at Greenwich Theatre on March 30. Tel: 020 8858 7755 (1-6pm, Mon-Sat) or visit www.greenwichtheatre.org.uk

WACKY inventors, star-gazing scientists and historic explorers will figure in a new exhibition that opens at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, at Easter.

Royal Museums Greenwich has commissioned eight British 'steampunk' artists to create works inspired by the technical inventions that were presented to the Board of Longitude between 1714 and 1828.

The exhibition features both fantastical inventions and real historic objects - blurring the boundaries between art and science, fiction and fact.

Called Longitude Punk'd, it includes specially-created pieces by steampunk luminaries Robert Rankin, Lady Raygun, Herr Döktor, Dr Geof, Emily Ladybird, Major Thaddeus Tinker, Lady Elsie, Yomi Ayeni and Wyn Griffiths.

Standing in the Meridian Courtyard and opening the door to the alternate realities of Longitude Punk'd will be 'The Globe of Dislocation', all that remains from the crash of time-travelling airship 'The Prime Landing', devised to navigate between alternate universes.

Visitors can then step inside the Sir Christopher Wren-designed Flamsteed House, and discover the captivating array of Steampunk curiosities displayed throughout its grand, historic surroundings as guided by The Commodore - a character created by renowned novelist Robert Rankin. On display will be opulent and ornate apparel inspired by the night sky including gowns, headresses, and a re-imagining of Nevil Maskelyne's noted silk observing suit, and outlandish contraptions purporting to solve the Longitude problem.

Steampunk novelist and illustrator Robert Rankin said: "For me it is an absolute honour to be chosen to exhibit my work at the Royal Observatory and to exhibit it alongside such artistic luminaries as Dr Geof and Herr Döktor, whose work I deeply admire."

All ages of the Addicks

THE 108-year chronology of the borough's top team may not have the trophy-laden past of some of London's clubs, but Charlton Athletic: A Pictorial History (pictured) is a compulsive read nevertheless.

Crafted by local historian and Addicks fan David Ramzan, the book works well as either an introduction to younger fans whose memories begin in the modern Curbishley era, or older ones, who will be particularly interested in the many striking images of famous Charlton moments over the years.

All the key moments in the club's history are documented, from the very early formative years, through to FA Cup success in the 1950s, to the recent ups and downs of League 1 and the resurgence under Chris Powell. The most important club legends like Sam Bartram and Jimmy Seed are celebrated alongside some of the more quirky moments in Charlton's rich history. Particularly interesting is the chapter on the dark days of the exile from the Valley, complete with the now infamous notice telling fans of the switch to Selhurst Park illustrating the section. A detailed look on the journey from and back to the Valley is a timely reminder to fans about the significance of not only the club to the local community, but the hard work of so many in ensuring that its future could be bright.

There's enough to keep fans of both Charlton and general football interested and is a must for diehard supporters.

Charlton Athletic: A Pictorial History by David C. Ramzan is published by Amberley and is priced at £14.99

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 384

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 2 April 2014 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 30 March 2014.

Reggie's quick-fire treble

REGGIE O'Reilly has continued his blistering start to his boxing career with two victories to add to his debut win at the end of January.

The youngest brother of Starting Blocks supported Jenna, five-times national boxing champion across the age-groups, took a second victory by a unanimous verdict and a third just a week later by a split verdict.

"In my second fight I gave the boy a standing count in the first round and in the third fight my opponent was 2kg heavier than me in weight," said the 11-year-old from Eltham, who is coached by Tony Pettit at Nemesis Amateur Boxing Club.

In the latest fight, he pushed his bigger opponent back and wobbled him with a screw shot in the first round and his footwork enabled him to throw various combinations.

The Crown Woods College pupil, who has been training for six years but only boxing in bouts this year, has impressed coaches sufficiently to be selected for trips to Ireland for a tournament in July and a training camp in Russia in September.

Displaying a mean jab with his left hand already (pictured), he says he is "working on boxing against southpaws".

Mum Jackie said: "Reggie's confidence is growing. He can't wait to fight again, and keep training hard with his Nemesis coaches who believe in his skill and natural ability and heart for the sport."

Harriers Sabrina and Noah earn international vests

"The club provides me with lots of friends and everyone has really supported me. A lot of people there are really experienced in the sport themselves. They've been there to help me through my downs and my ups."

About the race, she said: "I'm obviously tired from the rest of the season and I knew it was going to be a tough race."

"I tried to stick with [the winner] and it was pretty much a sprint all the way and she was just better on the day. I knew I'd need to be at my best to beat her."

Coach Mark Newell said of Sabrina: "We work on elements in training, but she's got what it takes to be an outstanding athlete. It's 10 per cent of what I do and 90 per cent what she does. She's got natural ability."

He added of Noah: "It was the best cross-country performance he has put together. Nobody expected him to finish second but he's been working towards coming in the top eight for the whole season."

Both will be looking to perform well on the track this summer, where they have a rival for glory. Vera, like Sabrina supported by Greenwich Starting Blocks which was set up to help promising athletes, won her national title in a personal best 7.76 seconds. Last season, she won English Schools 100m bronze.

Harriers' double delight

A NATURAL: Sabrina Sinha glides to second.

Club's joy at pair's silver medals

by Ian Lamont

CAMBRIDGE Harriers were celebrating a double success after two runners finished second in the England Schools Cross Country Championships.

Training partners Sabrina Sinha and Noah Armitage-Hookes, both 14, were runners-up in their age-groups, earning international vests to run for England in the Home Nations international at Bolton last weekend.

Their success came a week after Vera Chinedu also put the Sutcliffe Park-based club on the map by winning the England Championships U15 indoor 60m title.

Sabrina's success was on the cards after clinching the England National Cross Country Championships a few weeks earlier.

But the age-group alignments differed for this event, and the Blackheath teenager found herself up against athletes at least a year older in the U17 race, including the winner. However, Sabrina was only beaten by 12 seconds.

Noah's silver was less expected, but was clearly his focus. The Greenwich youngster had shunned the chance to team up with his twin brother Alfie for Dulwich College in a national rowing championships at Dorney Lake the day before, to concentrate on cross-country.

Alfie took silver in the single skulls but finished 63rd in the cross-country race.

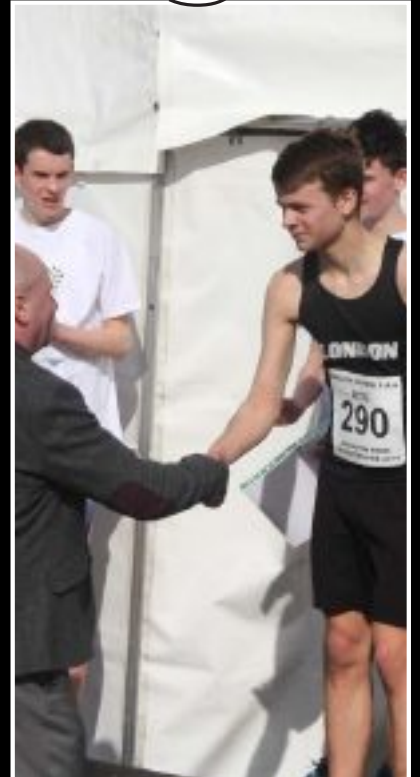

Their dad, Luke, said: "Noah ran the race of his life. He's really been working all year on this."

"He was 30th last year and it's been his target to get into the top eight, to get an international vest, and he finished second which was absolutely amazing."

Noah has been in the same training group as Sabrina for four years.

Sabrina said: "I'm really happy about Noah's success because it's great for the club."

Describing how the Harriers have helped her, Sabrina added: "The club
